Turning Up the Heat

Fireplaces tend to be the heart of the home and add a cozy ambiance to any room. Contemporary or traditional, families and friends like to gather around, not only to keep warm and cozy, but as a spot to get together, converse, watch TV, or just relax. In this custom design for our client's shore house (above), we came up with a sleek, modern look using one slab of stone and, by elongating the hearth, we combined form and function to create a statement piece.

Stairway to Heaven

Stairs can make an architectural statement. They are evocative of a journey into the private spaces of a home. Be it modern or traditional, a staircase is a prominent architectural feature. We designed this floating staircase (below at right) for a client's beach house using glass railings and hand-hewn wooden steps. Our clients wanted a contemporary style to allow as much light into their house as possible. This design considered both form and space yet added much value to the aesthetic of the house.

Ottoman Empire

Ottomans are the most versatile of furnishings. They provide extra seating, a pop of color, and can be moved around easily to serve many purposes. Place a tray on one and it turns into a coffee table where objects can be displayed. Ottomans can transition into footstools in an instant. Cover it with a beautiful fabric like the purple Fortuny in the picture below and you can effortlessly elevate the style of any room..
