Design Leslie Hayes Interiors/Exteriors

“Luxury must be comfortable; otherwise it is not luxury.”

Coco Chanel

Luxury and comfort are reflections of personal refinement and style. They can be achieved through an attitude toward design elements (fabrics, objects, furniture, flooring, lighting, colors) that are brought together and appear almost unplanned, but with a sense of harmony and balance.

Luxury means living comfortably, so your enjoyment in your surroundings is apparent. Luxurious dining rooms used to mean heavy Chippendale or Federal tables, but now a gorgeous piece of marble or slate on an exceptional found-object base can offer a different and stylish elegance. Or, the juxtaposition of the unexpected... often an object or an heirloom can look fresh when placed with a surprising texture or color. Rough and smooth, or dots and stripes, may bring out a creative harmony in the right setting. When luxury and comfort become an attitude, your living environment can surround you with colors, shapes and textures that reflect your evolving "visual voice."

TRIMMINGS

Whether buttons or frogs, custom details create the unique touches that bring pleasure and surprise.

SPOTTED!

A classic shape brought up to date through the choice of non-traditional pattern and color. The feel of velvet makes it ultra luxurious!

Or combine a modern piece with damask curtains in fresh and unexpected colors.
